FUND MANAGER SPEAKS

Equity market

Easing up of the European banking crises and expectations of easing of interest rates in emerging economies like China, India etc resulted in a sharp increase of risk appetite for equity as an asset class. For the month the BSE Sensex closed up 11.2% at 17,194 while the Nifty closed up 12.4% at 5,199. Reflecting the sentiment mid-caps and small caps outperformed large cap companies in a rising market. Sectorally auto, banking, capital goods, consumer durables, metals, oil & gas, power, PSU and realty outperformed the Sensex, while sectors considered defensives like FMCG, healthcare and software underperformed. FII were net buyers of USD 2 bn (net buyers of USD 31 mn in December '11), while mutual fund sold a net amount of USD 365 mn (net buyers of USD 107 mn in December '11).

In economic data flow in the month, the Index of Industrial Production (IIP) for the month of November '11 reported a pickup in growth to 5.9% YoY (de-growth of 4.7% YoY for previous month). On a sectoral basis, for the period April to November '11, mining de-grew by 2.5% and manufacturing grew by 4.1% YoY (compared to 7% YoY and 9% YoY respectively same period previous year). Though electricity sector was a bright spot with growth jumping from 4.5%YoY April-November previous year to 9.5% YoY same period this year. On a use basis in April-November '11, both capital goods and consumer goods reported a growth of -1% YoY and 4.9% YoY respectively (compared to 18.2% YoY and 8% YoY respectively same period previous year), indicating to a slowdown in consumption and investment demand. However within consumption, demand for non-durables remained strong with a reported growth of 4.6% YoY in the April '11 to November '11 period compared to 2.9% YoY same period previous year. The manufacturing PMI numbers for the January '12 rose to 57.5(54.2 in December '11) reflecting a further pick up in pace of growth. This was driven by output growth and a pickup in new orders.

In policy news, the government announced its decision to allow qualified foreign investors (which includes individuals, groups or association of foreign residents) to invest in Indian equity markets over and above the FII limit subject to certain norms. In a separate reform, market regulator SEBI allowed auctioning of securities through stock exchanges for institutional placement of shares by promoters.

On 24th January '12, RBI came out with its third quarter monetary policy review in which it cut the cash reserve requirement (CRR) for banks by 50 basis points to 5.5% (resulting in a liquidity injection of USD 6.3 bn), to address the large structural deficit in the banking system. While keeping its key lending rate unchanged, RBI indicated a change in policy stance towards addressing growth risks from the earlier stance of predominantly managing inflation risks. However RBI made policy rate cuts contingent on sustained decline in inflation, fiscal consolidation and progress of key supply side reforms.

Corporate results (854 companies) reported for the quarter ended December '11 till date showed a healthy sales growth of 25% YoY with an operating profit growth of 21% YoY. Net profit was flat on a YoY basis due to higher interest costs.

A pick up in manufacturing activity in US, weak economic data from China has led to sudden change in sentiment in the equity markets worldwide, with the markets seeing a better outlook for the world's largest economy and anticipating the end of the monetary policy tightening cycle in emerging markets (like India and China), which in turn provides a more conducive environment for risk assets.

In terms of outlook for February '12, Investors will look at the trend of the remaining corporate results yet to be reported for the quarter ended December '11 to get direction. Economic data flow from large economies like US, China and Euro zone, along with central bank policy action in these regions will impact global investor sentiment.

Debt market

The sovereign bond market continued its bullish momentum for the second month in a row, largely helped by the OMO purchases and expectations of monetary easing by RBI going forward. In fact, the 10 year benchmark yield touched a low of 10 month of 8.07% before the release of the policy, but failed to retain the bullish momentum post the announcement of policy. While the RBI chose to cut CRR by 50 bps to ease the liquidity shortfall but remained silent on whether further OMO's would be conducted or not. RBI Governor D. Subbarao during the post policy discussion with the market participants mentioned that RBI may wait for some time to see the impact of CRR cut on liquidity before deciding on OMOs. Later, RBI Deputy Governor Subir Gokarn said that cut in CRR does not rule out buy back via OMO's. Due to this lack of clarity/confusion on the stance of OMO's the market sentiment remained cautious. However, towards the end of the month, the continued high LAF borrowing by Banks, even after considering the CRR impact, once again revived the hopes for resumption of OMO purchases, providing stability to the market. The 10 year bench mark yield closed the month at 8.26%, down 30 bps compared to previous month.

RBI in its third quarter Monetary Policy Review 2011-12, cut the CRR rate by 50 bps to 5.50% w.e.f 28 January 2012. And left the Repo rate unchanged at 8.50%. RBI lowered the FY 12 GDP growth to 7% from an earlier estimate of 7.6% while retained the March-12 end inflation forecast at 7%. RBI also lowered the non food credit growth to 16% from 18%. The report said that fall in investments was one of the major reasons behind the slowdown in growth apart from global factors. RBI also said that the recent fall in food inflation may be limited and upside risk to inflation remains. The policy indicates that the growth – inflation trade off has shifted towards growth and hence rate cuts are warranted. However RBI has mentioned that without adequate support from fiscal side it will have limited room for cut rate.

The activity in the bond market was rather lack luster during the month, with yields softening marginally, compared to the sovereigns. While the 10 year AAA bond closed the month at 9.29%, down 13 bps, the 5 year AAA bond yields eased by around 16 bps, to close at 9.36% compared to 9.52% in the previous month. The credit spreads for the 5 year and 10 year bonds stood at 92 and 86 bps respectively.

The liquidity deficit in the system continued to remain at elevated levels during the month, despite intervention by RBI through OMOs. During the month, RBI bought bonds worth Rs.30,600 through OMO auctions. However, the systemic liquidity deficit, as depicted by average LAF borrowings by Banks - at Rs.1,29,000 Crores - increased by Rs.12,000 Crores. The prolonged stress in the systemic liquidity also led to some banks tapping the high cost MSF facility from RBI at 9.5% during the month.

The persistent deficit in the recent months is largely being attributed to heavy forex intervention in forward market during the month of November and December by RBI to stabilize the depreciating rupee. As a result of tight liquidity, the money market rates remained at elevated levels during the month. The 3 month and 12 month CD rates are currently trading in the range of 9.95%-10%, while the commercial papers of similar maturity are trading at around 10.25-35% range.

Inflation for the month of December 2011, as measured by WPI index, stood at 7.47% compared to 9.11% in the previous month. The sharp decline in inflation has been due to very high base as well as the softening trend in the primary articles. However the main concern is the core inflation, which has still not shown any signs of easing. Core index increased from 75.7 to 76.1 in December 2011. This implies core inflation of 7.69% compared to 7.90% in December 2011. It appears that any fall in the prices of international commodities is negated by the impact of rupee depreciation. Going forward, the headline inflation is expected to fall further and is likely to breach RBI's March end target of 7%, however any sharp fall in core inflation from here on appears doubtful.

The Index of Industrial Production (IIP) for the month of November-11 surprised on the upside. The Index for the month of November stood at 167.4 implying a growth of 5.9% from the year ago levels. On a M-o-M basis the Index increased by 5.5% in November compared to a fall of 2.9% in the previous month. Manufacturing sector rebounded in November-11 recording a growth 6.6% compared to -6% in the previous month. Capital goods sector recorded negative growth for the third consecutive month in November-11 though the magnitude of contraction has eased. The capital goods index after falling by 25.5% in Oct recorded a decline of 4.6% in the month of November-11, though on a M-o-M basis the capital goods index recorded a healthy growth of 12.8%. Growth in consumer durables rebounded sharply to 11.2% in Nov compared to -0.3% in the previous month. Consumer non durables also witnessed a significant improvement both on a M-o-M basis as well as annually and recorded double digit growth for the first time after March-11. The consumer non durables grew by 17.6% in Nov-11 over previous month and 14.8% from the year ago levels.

Despite the healthy growth seen in the recent IIP numbers, the Apr-Nov 11 cumulative growth in the current year is still less than half of the growth seen in the same period last year. Cumulative growth in Apr-Nov 11 stood at 3.8% compared to 8.4% last year indicating that overall growth remains weak attributable both to domestic and global factors. Going forward, IIP in December-11 may see some softening from the latest numbers because of high base.

Going forward, the monetary policy could be pro growth and hence one can expect policy rates cuts. However, the pace of reversal will be very gradual and in calibrated baby steps, as the core inflation is still way above the RBI comfort levels. Further the weak fiscal position of the government is also coming in the way of cutting policy rates prematurely. The market is expecting that the RBI is likely to ease policy rates from April onwards. However, one can expect another round of CRR cut, if the liquidity deficit widens on account of advance tax-flows in March-11. Moreover, given the present high liquidity deficit, we expect the RBI to continue its OMO operations in the month of February as well. In this scenario, we expect the bonds prices to remain well bid going forward.
